ENQUIRIES 1–3

ENQUIRY 1: IRON & STEAM REVOLUTION

1. ► 1769 — Watt's condenser converted steam into continuous rotative power, freeing factories from river valleys and powering heavy machinery. [✓] [X]

2. ► Molten metal flowed into sand moulds resembling suckling pigs; raw coal contaminated it with sulphur, leaving it brittle — Sulphur-rich coal made pig iron brittle and prone to shattering under high steam pressure or artillery cannon fire. [✓] [X]

3. ►► Deflecting radiant heat from an arched roof onto the iron, keeping coal smoke separate from molten metal — The reverberatory oven burned away carbon impurities while preventing sulphur contamination, producing pure malleable wrought iron. [✓] [X]

4. ►► They continuously squeezed out liquid slag and rolled uniform iron bars in seconds rather than slow manual hammering — Hydraulic rollers standardized naval iron dimensions and multiplied British industrial wrought iron production fifteen-fold. [✓] [X]

5. ►►► The Royal Navy was the world's largest consumer of wrought iron, providing an immediate market and trial facilities — Without urgent Admiralty demand for reliable ship bolts and anchors, Cort would have lacked the capital or testing facilities to develop puddling. [✓] [X]

6. ►►► It allowed Britain to produce cheap iron rails, locomotives, and machinery faster than all European rivals combined — Abundant coal and cheap rolled iron laid the physical infrastructure for railway networks, steamships, and Victorian global trade mastery. [✓] [X]

ENQUIRY 2: FACTORY SYSTEM & CHILD LABOUR

7. ► Scavengers and piecers — Scavengers crawled under whirring looms to sweep loose cotton, while piecers tied broken threads at constant risk of losing fingers or scalp. [✓] [X]

8. ► Byssinosis ("mill fever" or brown lung disease) — Fine cotton fibres clogged children's lungs, causing debilitating chronic coughing and permanent respiratory damage. [✓] [X]

9. ►► The Factory Act of 1833 — The 1833 Act established statutory regulation, limiting children aged 9–13 to eight hours of daily work and appointing four national inspectors. [✓] [X]

10. ►► Laissez-faire capitalism — Industrialists argued Parliament had no legal right to interfere with "freedom of contract", insisting regulation would ruin British trade profits. [✓] [X]

11. ►►► Publishing horrifying eyewitness testimony of 14-hour workdays, physical beatings, and child crippling in mills — Michael Sadler exposed systemic brutality, proving that self-regulation failed and compelling Parliament to intervene in the workplace. [✓] [X]

12. ►►► Workers surrendered personal autonomy to the relentless mechanical pace of steam engines and the factory clock — Unlike home cottage craftwork where workers controlled their pace, factories imposed locked gates, punitive fines, and 14-hour shifts. [✓] [X]

ENQUIRY 3: SLUMS, CHOLERA & SANITATION

13. ► Cholera — Cholera caused fatal dehydration through violent diarrhea and vomiting, killing thousands within hours of first symptoms. [✓] [X]

14. ► Miasma theory ("bad air") — Most Victorian doctors believed bad smells caused disease, delaying recognition that cholera was spread by contaminated drinking water. [✓] [X]

15. ►► Deadly combinations of open cesspools, contaminated well water, unventilated back-to-back cellars, and typhus — Overcrowded industrial slums lacked sewers, clean piped water, or garbage disposal, causing infant mortality rates to exceed 50%. [✓] [X]

16. ►► The Sanitary Report of 1842 (Report on the Sanitary Condition of the Labouring Population) — Chadwick used statistical mortality tables to prove squalor caused epidemics, convincing MPs that clean sewers saved taxpayer money. [✓] [X]

17. ►►► Mapping cholera deaths geographically to prove victims all drank from a single sewage-contaminated water pump — When Snow removed the pump handle, cholera deaths stopped immediately, establishing modern epidemiology and waterborne disease theory. [✓] [X]

18. ►►► It made clean water supply, sewage disposal, and street lighting legally compulsory for all local councils — It abandoned laissez-faire negligence, forcing towns to appoint medical health officers and build modern underground sewer networks. [✓] [X]

ENQUIRIES 4–5

ENQUIRY 4: PETERLOO & THE TOLPUDDLE MARTYRS

19. ► The Peterloo Massacre (at St Peter's Field) — Magistrates panicked and ordered sabre-wielding yeomanry to arrest orator Henry Hunt, killing eighteen reformers and injuring over six hundred. [✓] [X]

20. ► "Captain Swing" — The Swing Riots saw rural farmworkers destroy mechanical threshing machines that had robbed them of winter employment and wages. [✓] [X]

21. ►► It enfranchised only middle-class property owners, leaving working-class men completely excluded from voting — While it abolished corrupt "rotten boroughs", the £10 property qualification meant nine out of ten men still had zero parliamentary vote. [✓] [X]

22. ►► Swearing an illegal secret oath while forming a friendly trade union to resist wage cuts — Fearing trade unionism, landowners used an archaic 1797 naval mutiny statute to convict George Loveless and fellow farm labourers. [✓] [X]

23. ►►► Mobilizing 100,000 peaceful protesters in London and collecting 800,000 petition signatures, forcing a royal pardon — Massive peaceful trade union demonstrations forced the government to remit their sentences and bring the martyrs home from Australia. [✓] [X]

24. ►►► It proved that landowners and magistrates would use laws and troops to crush unions until working men won the vote — Bitterness from these defeats convinced working-class leaders to form the national Chartist movement to capture control of Parliament. [✓] [X]

ENQUIRY 5: CHARTISM & DEMOCRACY

25. ► The People's Charter (1838) — The Charter demanded six key political reforms to turn Britain from an aristocratic oligarchy into a true representative democracy. [✓] [X]

26. ► Universal male suffrage and the Secret Ballot (or: Payment for MPs, Equal Constituencies, Abolition of Property Qualifications, Annual Parliaments) — These reforms aimed to ensure that ordinary working men could stand for Parliament and vote without intimidation from landlords. [✓] [X]

27. ►► Without a state salary, only wealthy men with independent private fortunes could afford to serve in Parliament — Unpaid MPs meant Parliament remained an exclusive club of wealthy landowners and factory bosses; paying MPs allowed working men to govern. [✓] [X]

28. ►► Moral Force advocated peaceful petitions and speeches, while Physical Force threatened armed revolution and general strikes — William Lovett believed peaceful persuasion would win public sympathy, while Feargus O'Connor warned that tyrants only surrendered to force. [✓] [X]

29. ►►► Wealthy ruling elites feared that giving working men the vote would lead to the confiscation of private property and wealth redistribution — MPs viewed Chartism as dangerous socialism, arresting leaders and deploying thousands of special constables to disperse the 1848 Kennington Common rally. [✓] [X]

30. ►►► Although defeated in the short term, five of the six Chartist demands were subsequently enacted into law by 1918 — With the exception of annual parliaments, every single Chartist demand became the constitutional foundation of modern British democracy. [✓] [X]
