Sources for use with Section A.

Source A: From the diary of Edward Munro, 7 November 1916. Munro was a stretcher bearer on the Western Front. Here he is describing his work during the Battle of the Somme.

> The Sergeant in charge ordered us to stay and help his team, as there were many casualties and he did not have enough stretcher bearers.
>
> After a short rest, we started to carry the wounded and there were a large number of them. The soldiers had made an attack on the German line the previous night and had suffered many casualties. The land over which we carried the wounded is very difficult to cross, as it has many waterlogged shell holes. We were constantly shelled by the Germans. Yesterday, two stretcher bearers had been killed.
>
> Carrying the wounded is very difficult at night. The landmarks which guide us in the daytime are not visible at night, meaning it is easy to get lost.
>
> We are covered in mud, have sore feet and are tired.

Source B: An official war photograph showing soldiers pushing a motorised ambulance during the Battle of the Somme, July 1916. It was one of a series of photographs published by the Daily Mail national newspaper.
